"Injuns, stranger—Injuns? Yes, I know the hull gang of 'em from Red Cloud and Spotted Tail down to the toddling pappoose. I ought to know 'em—I've fit 'em for nigh onto thirty years!"

'em—I've fit 'em for nigh onto thirty years!'

He was a grim-looking old man, with grizzly locks in view under his coon-skin cap. He had on a bear-skin coat, Indian moccasins, buckskin shirt and leggings, and he held a long rifle between his knees as we talked.

"These Western railroads are rapidly civilizing the country—fast killing off Indians, wolves and buffaloes?"

He looked around the car, which was handsomely furnished and finished, and sighed as he replied:

"Yes, times are gittin' wuss and wuss down this way. I've been thinkin' of goin' up to the Yellowstone, whar a man can go out any time o' day and git up a squar fight with a grizzly, orraise a rumpus with the reds."

"You must be quite an old man?"

"Only 'bout sixty. I aint quite so limber on a long run, and can't sleep quite so well with the rain pouring down into my face, but if I thought I wasn't good for any three Injuns on the plains, or any grizzly that ever stood on legs, I'd ax ye to shoot me!"

"You must have seen wild times out

"You must have seen wild times out here?"
"Purty wild—purty wild," mused the old man; "there used to be heaps o' reds out here, to say nothing of the wolves, b'ars an' rattlesnakes, an' thar was times when death rose up to shake hands

"Ever taken prisoner?"
"I mought hev been—I guess I was?"
the said, as he uncovered his head.
"Why, you have been scalped?"
"They called it sculping, stranger?"
"And who did that?"
"This same blested Red Cloud. He

"There wasn't time to feel any sensatione, stranger. They sneaked in on me an' Tom as we dozed, an' when I woke up Tom was riddled an' my sculp was hanging to an Injun's belt!"
"And what then?"
"Nothing much. I got up and killed two, wounded another, and legged it up a canon and got away. If it was to do over again I'd gft my topknot back or fight the whole Sioux nation till sumbody went under!"

body went under!"

He seemed lost in reflection for a moment, and then continued:

There was silence again while he un-buttoned his shirt and showed me a buttoned his shirt and showed me a bosom literally gridironed with scars. "Well, thar may be two or three koife cuts thar," he explained, "but the heft o' them scars wuz made by a grizzly. He wasn't one o' these bar calves that sum folks knock over an' then blow about, but a reg'lar three-story, old-fashioned grizzly, such as ye don't find outside o' the darkest canons in the Rockies. Rockies. I wuz bendin' over the fire when the varmint slid down a canon an' wuz right on hand afore I had any warnin'."

"And was it a hard fight?"

"It wuz a purty fight, stranger, because it wuz a fa'r fight. I had a big knile, an' he had teeth an' claws, an' we went in ter kill. He wuz goot grit, but a leetle slow. Thar wuz about thirty days after that little episode that my pard had to nuss me like a child."

"And you mean to die out here?"

"Thav's for the Lord to say, but I 'apects yer more'n right. The Injuns is purty quiet down here, an' these keers ar' bringin' heaps o' people West, but I'm gon' up whar a white man won't disturb the Lord's work for a hundred years to cum! I feel kinder mean an' small down here—as if I wuz huntin' rabbits, but up the Yellowstone a feller kin brace up after he's knocked over a red or two an' feel as if he wasn't foolin' away his young days!"

And that was old Carter.

M. Lebeau, a veterinary surgeon of Paris, claims to have discovered a cure for bydrophobia, and submits the cure to an experiment, as follows: On the B of May, he inoculated with hydrophobia virus sixteen dogs in a hospital. Eight of these dogs will be kept securely without treatment, the other will be theated with the remedy, and the practitioner is confident that his eight will remain sound, while the others will dis.

Joseph Mudloon had scarcely touched the mark when he informed the court that he was not only a poor orphan, with-out a relative in the world, but that he belonged in Canada.
"I dan't help it if you belong in Colo-sado," replied the court; "you shall have a fair trial and truth and justice shall stand out here like freekles on a Chicago seman's nose. Are you guilty!"

rand out here like freckles on a Chicago seman's nose. Are you guilty?"

"You a drop, air."

"Where did you drop from?"

"I mean that I sipped a little brandy, it, and it flew to my head."

"Toseph Muldoon, native of Canada, rou're spoken truly," said his Honor. The brandy flew to your head, you flew as alley and the police flew to you. It was a flying time. Do you make a prac-tice of drinking brandy?"

"No, sir—I drink whisky as a general

"Yes, sir, thanks."

"Yes—um—yes," mused his Honor, as he looked over at the grinning Bijah.

"Well; I'll sequester you."

"Thanks, sir, thanks."

"I don't want any thanks. I said I'd sequester you for thirty days,"

"I'm greatly obliged, sir, and I'll go now—right off."

"Sir! don't you know what sequester means?" exclaimed the court.

"Yes, sir, and I'll be in Canada in ten minutes!"

Bijah grinned.

The clerk grinned.

The reporters anxiously waited.

"Mr. Joy, let this man out," continued the court as he looked up from his papers, "and warn him that he'll catch it if he ever comes within thirty-six miles of Detroit again."
